Dear hiring manager

I'm writing to express my interest in the First Jobbers Program opportunity at FNB. As a computer science graduate, I would love this chance to earn professional experience. The reliability and performance of your software have impressed me. I'm excited about the opportunity to learn how your software development team creates these products while also using my skills to contribute to the business's success. In my university years I have acquired skills such as HTML5, CSS3, Bootstrap5, JavaScript, Git Java and Python along with the Django and the Django Rest Frameworks. I have built my personal projects using these skills, I now need a real-world application of the skills I have.

I've maintained a 2.5 GPA since the beginning of my university education. I just believe that this GPA does not define my ability to thrive and solve problems. Please kindly check my GitHub to confirm what I'm saying. Not only have I maintained the 2.5 GPA, but I've also worked as a mentorship coordinator for the GKSS UWC society. In this role, I've led class discussions and freshman projects, and I also work as a part-time tutor for high school students who need help with mathematics.

I believe adding me to your First Jobbers Program would be fantastic. I'm determined to use this opportunity as a worthwhile educational experience in addition to offering my full contribution. Kindly contact me via email if you have any enquiries concerning my credentials. I hope to hear from you soon and would love to know more about this possibility. Thank you in advance for considering me for this position.

Yours sincerely,

Bhekumuzi
